BY MISS ANNIE H. EDWARDS.

Oh fairer to me than the riant morn.
When be cometh fresh from the kiss of dawn.
And brighter by far, than the noontide blaze.
Or the amber glow of evening's haze.
And sweeter than natum, or vesper chimes.
Are the memories of the olden times.

There is one that rises above the rest.
Of my school-girl days, 'tis the dearest best.
Of a lovely face on whose changing cheek
Dimples and blushes play at hide-and-seek.
Whose eyes are the color from Heaven brought.
Whose brow bears the starry gems of thought.

Together we worried o'er parlay rows.
Deep waters of "ologies" waded through.
Together we talked of the coming years.
Lig ted with a life-leaves, or clouded by tears.
But fairer far, than car h's fairest flow'rs.
Were the visions bright, of those glad some hours.

Thou hast drained a breaker of love's red wine.
And carst not now, for such draughts as mine.
Thou hast breathed the perfume of cloud-land flowers.
And aposid amid elysium bowers.
Tis well, but thou mightest have left one spot.
Where husband and house-love could enter not.

O I had met coldness on every side.
But look'd on to find it in Lide, my Lide.
When I turn'd to her from the world's dark mart.
With a quivering lip and an aching heart.
Say, had'st thou not drop of the olden balm.
To bring to the troubled spirit calm?

But tears for departed joys are vain.
The past is past, and cannot come again.
Weary our parting was, sad our farewell.
But absence and time have broken the spell.
The love-beams that linnied those bygone days.
Are hid in oblivion's dusky haze.

The love of affection, are severed in twain.
And friendship has loosened her sister chain.

Impeachment of the President--
Speech of Hon. T. L. Jones, of Kentucky, in Congress, on Feb. 23, 1868.

CONCLUDED.

In this act he was supported by the opinion of every member of his Cabinet, and no one of them expressed his abhorrence of the bill with so much emphasis as this now valiant knight of the War office, Edwin M. Stanton. Indeed, such was the ability with which he descended upon its odious provisions that the President desired him to prepare his veto, which only press of business denied him that pleasure. The bill however, becomes a law, at least so we will consider it for the purposes of the argument, and we are now told that the President has violated it, and in doing which he has been guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, sufficient to warrant his impeachment and removal from office. His accusers base the entire charge of this violation upon a single provision of the bill; it is this:

"Be it enacted, &c., That any person holding any civil office to which he has been appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and every person who shall hereafter be appointed to any such office, and shall become duly qualified to act therein, is and shall be entitled to hold such office until a successor shall have been in like manner appointed and duly qualified except as herein otherwise provided:

Provided, That the Secretaries of State, of the Treasury, of War, of the Navy and of the Interior, the Postmaster General and the Attorney General, shall hold their offices respectively for and during the term of the President by whom they may have been appointed, and for one month thereafter, subject to removal by and with the advice and consent of the Senate."

Who can doubt that here is a provision and exception that the Secretaries of State, of the Treasury, of War, of the Navy, of the Interior, the Postmaster General, and the Attorney General, are not included within the scope and meaning of this bill, but are in its spirit and letter expressly exempted? And such was the expressed opinion of the author and the supporters of the bill at the time of its passage in the Senate. They were to hold their offices respectively for and during the term of the President by whom they were appointed and for one month thereafter. It only remains, then, to determine by whom and for whose term the Secretary of War, Edwin M. Stanton, was appointed. Who denies that he was appointed by Abraham Lincoln, and therefore could only hold his office for Lincoln's term and one month thereafter, except by the re-appointment or mere sufferance of President Johnson? Could language be plainer, could fact be more patent? He bears no commission from Johnson, and has only retained the place of Secretary of War through the too patient endurance of that President.

But to spin out sophistry refined, it is claimed by some that Lincoln's term has not expired, and we must therefore tolerate the official life of the dignitary Stanton, if indeed he naturally abides for four years and one month thereafter. Is Lincoln dead, or does he still live? Can dead men hold office and administer human affairs? Had we not a Tyler administration, and a Fillmore administration; and is not this the administration of Andrew Johnson, who succeeded to the Presidency as they did? To assume that this is the term of Lincoln is to reject the laws of nature and to belie the evidence of our own senses. The term of the office and the term of the officer are very different things; the one is fixed by law, the other depends upon the life, the removal, or resignation of the officer. The provision in the bill did not refer to the term of the office, but to "the term of the President," the officer who then held it.

This strained construction is but another manifestation of radical frenzy and desperation. President Johnson, then, in the attempt to remove Mr. Stanton, has in no manner violated this law in its strict letter and bearing; but if he had, what more can be made of it than that in the exercise of a high prerogative he had chosen to act in accordance with previous laws of Congress, which had been confirmed by the Supreme Court, rather than of this which he vetoed, and the constitutionality of which had not been passed upon? Had he not the right, too, to test a law the validity of which he and his cabinet and the most learned of the land had at least doubted? This right inures to the humblest citizen of the Republic. In the attempt to displace Mr. Stanton, and to install Gen. Lorenzo Thomas, do not all the attending circumstances go to show that the President simply intended to present the question for judicial investigation and settlement? Some on the other side of the House have said, with apparent soberness and even awful gesture, that it was the intention of the President to use the army to over-ride the laws and strike down the liberties of the people. Did he send General Thomas to the War Office with an army at his back, or even the smallest squad of soldiers? Not an individual accompanied him; he went solitary and alone. It was purely an unostentatious, quiet, civil proceeding, by which, under proper forms of law, to elicit the judgement of the highest court of the Government upon this much-vexed question. Why could not Congress have allowed this to be done? Was it not necessary for a proper discharge of the duties of the Executive and for the peace and harmony of the country? But to deprive the act of all criminal intent or the slightest disposition to disobey even this law the President being thwarted in his effort with General Thomas, soon sends into the Senate the name of Thomas Ewing as Secretary of War.

This would seem to be the whole case in its legal aspect. What right has been infringed, what liberty destroyed, what law violated by the President?

But there is a section of this tenure-of-office bill upon which the President is to be impeached, that bears in the right way. Section five provides—

"That if any person shall, contrary to the provisions of this act, accept any appointment to, or employment in any office, or shall hold or exercise, or attempt to hold or exercise, any such office or employment, he shall be deemed, and is hereby declared, to be guilty of a high misdemeanor, and upon trial and conviction thereof he shall be punished therefor by a fine not exceeding $10,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both said punishments in the discretion of the court."

Now, do not the facts and circumstances of this case show, and has it not been proven, that Mr. Stanton himself "attempts to hold or exercise the office of Secretary of War "contrary to the provisions of this act" and without the shadow of authority, and would it not be a righteous judgment that he should suffer the penalties here prescribed and be required for this as well as other and even graver crimes to look out for long years from the loathsome dungeons of the Dry Tortugas?

Was it not the President's duty to remove him? How could he take care that the laws be faithfully executed unless there was harmony of sentiment in all the Executive Departments, and especially between him and those who are so near to him—the heads of Departments? They are the members of his official family, with whom there ought to be free and daily intercourse and among whom there must be concurrence of opinion in order promptly and properly to execute the laws. Mr. Stanton had differed essentially with the President, had openly opposed his policy, and had become obnoxious, odious, politically and personally, to him and his cabinet. He might have often exclaimed to him, in the language of the indignant Cicero, pointing to the conspirators of his country's liberties:

"Quosque tandem abutere, Catilina, patientia nostra?"

How long, indeed, has he abused their patience?

After much tolerance he was politely invited to retire, but invitation and hints amounting to insult to a proud man, having no effect, he was finally ejected and the head of the army placed in his stead "ad interim." This "silent monitor" for a time with seeming fidelity discharged the duties of the office, but at length, in an hour when we thought not, betraying the confidence of his chief, suddenly evacuated and lets in this scorned and cast-out official, with the Senate at his heels. Did ever audacity mount higher? Was ever Executive so outraged both as to personal and official dignity?

The President, with that caution and calmness characteristic of the man, for a time bears this monstrous encroachment; but who thought that he would long submit to it? Who doubted that he would persevere in the exercise of his prerogatives, and that he would again attempt to remove this detestable obstacle to the execution of the laws. General Thomas is dispatched to take charge of the office, and this creeping, cringing thing, this "Caliban of the Vempest," obsequiously submits, and only asks time to gather up his effects. The General with the courtesy of a soldier, grants his request and retires. After a reasonable time he returns, but only to find this brazen interloper surrounded by soldiers and on a throne as it were, of bristling bayonets.

Such, sir, is the spectacle now presented in this capital of a great country, famed for the supremacy of the civil over the military authority, for proper subordination in its several departments, and for a just and wise administration of the laws. Is the reputation or the life of Edwin M. Stanton worth so much that the blood of the nation should stand still and the whole system be endangered even for a moment in this controversy.

But, sir, the fiat has gone forth; right or wrong, wicked or worldly, the President is to be impeached. He is abused, stigmatized, anathematized without measure, but he reckes not of the slanderous missiles that are hurled at his head. He sits calm and wise as Ulysses in the Grecian tent. The people will, I trust, and posterity, I am sure, will, vindicate his acts. His highest eulogy has been pronounced by himself when in rain-dropping the act complained of, he said: "If I had been fully advised that in thus defending the trust committed to my hand my own removal was sure to follow I could not have hesitated, actuated by public considerations of the highest character." This sentence will go down the ages to come. I know, sir, how vain are my words and all our efforts, our appeals, protestations, and votes. Party supremacy must be maintained at all hazards; the revolution must go on and bear down in its sweep all obstacles to its accomplishment. There has been a Spanish inquisition; there has been a French revolution, and it might not be amiss if some would bring to memory the fate of a Danton, a Robespierre, and a Marat.

I might remind gentlemen of their solemn obligations on this occasion as conservators of the peace, the laws, and liberty of the country. But what are constitutions and laws and oaths when the fires of revolution are still blazing and its wheels fast rolling on?

I commend to these swift accusers the significant prophecy of Gouverneur Morris, who put into shape and penned this Constitution of ours; and I bid them beware that they do not now signally verify it:

"But, after all, what does it signify that men should have a written Constitution containing unequivocal provisions and limitations? The legislative lion will not be entangled in the meshes of a logical net. The legislature will always make the power which it wishes to exercise. Attempt to restrain it by other means will only render it more outrageous. The idea of binding legislators by oaths is puerile. Having sworn to exercise the powers granted according to their prudent and meaning, they will, when they feel a desire to go further, avoid the shame if not the guilt or perjury by swearing the true intent and meaning to be, according to their comprehension, that which suits their purpose."

Sir, gentlemen tell us that we may not even warn them of their evil deeds or of the popular wrath to come. They avow that valiant men will sustain their action if necessary on the battle-field; each equal to two or three of any who may oppose them. Vain threats! fanciful delusions!

I do warn them, sir, that the spirit of liberty may still lurk in the bosoms of the sturdy yeomanry of this land, and if provoked too far a million of men will spring to arms to defend their rights and to ward off a merciless despotism. I might here, without arrogance, speak for a hundred thousand riflemen of Kentucky, who would be united as one man in the contest, equal in courage, strength and skill to the best the world has produced. I admonish gentlemen that they may not much longer enjoy the luxury of this Belshazzar feast. The hand-writing may already be faintly seen upon the wall; they have been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Sir, the people of this great country, if they are not dead to shame and dishonor, if they have a speck of the valor of their revolutionary sires, will not submit to these accumulated wrongs and outrages; no; rather they will rise up in the full magnitude and majesty of their power, and come if need be, like avalanches from the mountains, like hurricanes from the valleys, like the swelling waters of mighty rivers, like the surges of the lakes and the billows of the sea, even to this Capitol, batter down these doors, drive out these servants who have so misused their authority, purge and cleanse these halls, possess that tribute and altar, and place in these seats true and faithful sentinels, who, they and their successors, shall guard forever the rich heritage which their fathers have bequeathed to them.

The Post-office was removed last evening to the South basement of the Commercial bank building, on Main street. We understand that it is an excellent location, and splendidly arranged.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR A YOUNG MAN.—Desiring to make a change in their business, Messrs. Rhorer Bros. will offer to a young man of steady habits, an opportunity to gain a practical knowledge of the art of Photography, and an interest in their business at once. The vocation is a pleasant as well as profitable one, and young men who are looking about for an opening had better drop in and see them.

NOTICE.—A punctual man is rarely a very poor man, and never a man of doubtful credit. His small accounts are frequently settled, and he never meets with difficulty in raising money to pay large demands. Small debts neglected ruin credit; and when a man has lost that, he will find himself at the bottom of a hill he cannot ascend.

Now, gentlemen, please come forward, and settle your small accounts, with yours, C. T. DEDLIN. Feb6-6t

Our worthy county Judge, recently refused to grant a tavern license to the people in Tricum, because of their too free and unbridled use of whisky. One morning shortly after the license was refused, some heartless wretch hung black crepe on all the doors and trees in that good place. The absence of whisky from the town had given it such quietness and serenity that the neighbors were under the impression that some deaths had occurred there, or that the town had been abandoned. Let us advise our friends in Tricum to build a church, and begin to think of that other and better world, for "His religion that can give Sweetest pleasures while we live, 'Tis religion will supply All you need when death draws nigh."

A Card. In the last week's News I noticed a card of Mr. H. C. Magee's, giving his statement of his assault on me at Falmouth, and that he can prove it to be true, and that my friends and myself have lied, and asking me to call upon him for the proof. Therefore I will do so at the next term of the court, so that the community may hear his proof in the case. Also that I have lied in regard to a hog trade, and that he can prove it by Jim Nute Frazer and Wash Cragmyle; and I now call on him to do so; if I have lied, I want the community to know it, if not, I wish to be clear of the charge. Therefore, in justice to myself and that the community may know the facts in the case, I hope Messrs. Cragmyle and Frazer will give a full statement of the facts in the case, in next week's News.

Our old friend A. H. Varney, formerly landlord of the "Varney House," in this city, long years ago, called on us last Tuesday, in company with O. D. McManama, Esq., of Grant. Long may they wave.

The fish-mongers hereabouts are at tempting a rather rough thing on Cynthiana. Every street is a fish-market, and dealers are as plentiful as black-birds in Virginia. They propose to make a "Billingsgate" of the town, but we protest against the move.

Parents in this city should see to it, that their children attend Sabbath-school. No excuse should keep them at home. Young men and young ladies should encourage such places. Let us all go to Sabbath-school, and as soon as the grass becomes green and the weather suitable, we must have a Sabbath-school picnic celebration and picnic. Who is for it?

Ambrose Bramblett was arrested on the firm of Mr. Sandusky, near Millersburg, on Friday last, by constable Barress, for stealing a horse and a mule from Morton Levi, near Comersville, in this county, and brought to Cynthiana, on Saturday, and taken before Judge Curry, where he gave bail to appear last Tuesday, in the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars. He has failed to make his appearance, and his bail is forfeited. Mr. Sandusky went his bail.

The President of the Cynthiana and Carlisle turnpike company has sent to T. R. Rankin, of this city, a diagram of his road, for the inspection of our citizens; and we feel that they should begin to think of the advantages that will accrue to us, on its completion. This road will put us in direct communication with Carlisle, as soon as one mile and three-quarters of it can be finished from Hook-town to Steel's Run, and it will take just one thousand five hundred dollars to make it fit for use. Will the people of Cynthiana subscribe or assist this company to finish their work? We hope they will. Go and see the diagram, and do something to get up a stir among the sons of men—make yourselves and your town triumphant, or be forever fallen.

THE WORKING MAN.—The activity and lively appearance of affairs in Cynthiana, at this time is very encouraging to every man who desires to see the "City of Maidens" prosperous and thrifty. We are indebted to the working white men for this display of energy and busy strife. It took the courage and enterprise of the laboring white man, to venture into the Western wilds, when he was compelled to plow with one hand, while carrying his trusty rifle in the other for his protection. His conscience is void of offense, and for independence he relies upon his own strong arm. This country is fast filling up with the laboring white man and we have not half as many as we need. We want that class however, that are in favor of their own race, and are not seeking to advance the African. The honest white laborer is the noblest work of God—God bless the noble working man. Whose hands and arms are brown with toil Who backed by no ancestral ties, Hew down the wood and till the soil; God bless him for his noble sweat, Is better than diamonds in a coronet."

Training and Boarding STABLE.
Pleasant Street, Cynthiana, Ky.

THE undersigned having taken possession of the Livery and Sale stable formerly occupied by David Veach, on Pleasant street, is prepared to board horses at $2.50 cents per week.
Also will break, and handle colts for $3.50 cents per day.
Many stock owners believe that when I break a horse for use, that he is prepared for the turf. Not so. A horse must be broke before he is trained. I train horses for speed at $1.50 cents per day, and break them
at the same price.
I am a veterinary surgeon of long practice, and understand all horse diseases. I can prick, nick and dock horses, also straighten crooked tails and castrate. Call and see me.

J. J. GOOD,
Agent for the Singer New Family Sewing Machine,

This machine is without a superior in the world. It runs as fast and easy and with as little noise as any first class machine in market. It will sew from the stoutest leather to the finest bank bill, and makes every stitch perfect. It tears, fills, binds, cords and work. It is strong, compact and durable, and will last twenty years, for ordinary family sewing, if not broken by accident or carelessness. But it is useless to parade a long list of the merits of this machine before the public, as the poorest concerns furnish them in the greatest abundance. All can try this machine by calling on the agent and it will proclaim its own merits.

All kinds of gunsmithing, jobbing and repairing done to guns and pistols. Ammunition of all kinds kept constantly on hand.
